HONGKONG, MAY 9, 1865.

SOME of our readers must have observed in the London papers of last January, a memorial addressed to Lord Stanley of Alderley, the Postmaster-General and signed by nearly all the principal bankers and merchants connected with the East, praying that the dispatch of the mails to India and China might be changed from a fixed day of the month as at present, to a fixed day of the week.

The memorialists thus express themselves. "The East-India Mails, via Marseilles, are now despatched on the 3rd, 10th, 18th, and 26th of each month. This arrangement causes the mail day to fall on a constantly changing day of the week, and when that day is a Sunday, the mail is postponed until the following Monday, thus causing a loss of not less than three days, because the business transacted on Saturday and Monday is of a very restricted character, and the really important intelligence to be transmitted is that of the preceding Friday. This loss happens practically in the case of nearly one-half of the mails despatched in the course of the year.

"It is suggested that a weekly mail, to be fixed on one convenient day, will be far more suitable to the habits and arrangements of men of business, especially those who have fixed weekly engagements, and for the regular and methodical transmission of mercantile correspondence.

"The despatch of the American mails by the Cunard steamers is an instance in point.

"If the India mails were invariably despatched on Friday evening, the letters they carry would contain the Bank of England weekly accounts and all the financial and market intelligence of the week up to the latest moment; no transaction of importance being effected on Saturday, Friday appears to be in every way the best day for selection.

"The proposed arrangement will involve the despatch yearly of four additional mails to India, two to China, and one to Australia, and a like additional number from each of these places. Your memorialists have no doubt but that the countries named will be very grateful for the additional postal communication with England which they would thus enjoy."

We now learn that the Post Master General has assented to the request of the memorialists on the simple condition that the Marseilles postage on all letters be raised from ten pence to one shilling. The contract with the P. & O. Company will have to be altered of course. We suppose it is calculated that this extra two pence will reimburse the Government for the additional contract figure.

This subject is important to our readers inasmuch as the mails from this will also be dispatched on a fixed day of the week, which will be a vast advantage and will do away with all this trouble regarding Sunday which at present is so excessively annoying. This arrangements however will place the P. & O. Company and the Messageries Imperiales in an eccentric position with regard to each other. Sometimes their boats will start on the same day; sometimes there will be so little difference in the start that it will be difficult to predict with certainty which will reach home first; and sometimes there with be so much difference as to render a full correspondence by each necessary. The French boats had better go by the week also we suppose and that will make a little more regularity.

When this arrangement is meant to commence we do not know, but suppose on the 1st January.

IN our correspondents column will be found a letter defending our China issue against the attacks of our contemporary. We think our correspondent might have coupled his time more profitably, to use his own expression, than in defending a long established and highly esteemed periodical from that insipid malevolence which excites every aspiration of our mawkish contemporary. It is said that "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing," and if it be that this adage is inapplicable to the Editor of the China Mail it certainly must be because he has no knowledge at all. His mission to China was to teach the young idea how to shoot, and he very soon shot St Andrew's school empty. We have resided in China more than a quarter of a century and at a considerable outlay and inconvenience we have established the only China newspaper which ever proved self-supporting. We have no tenacious feelings regarding the paper; on the contrary the more it is attacked, the more its energies will be awakened. But to be lectured on Chinese matters by a man, who in the last issue of the China Mail stated that the Prince of Kung was not a Manchu, is rather more than we can placidly stomach.

We have no patience with our contemporary. He is without exception the most arrant lick-spittle that ever crawled. He has no fixed principles—no decided opinions—no public consistency. Both publicly and privately did he revile Governor Robinson—and he declared that nothing had ever been said against him which did not fall short of the truth. We were plain spoken and specific enough in conveying our sentiments to the public regarding Sir Hercules—perhaps too much so, as insinuations go further now-a-days than plain language. But in sonrility and coarse abuse we were never provoked so far as to commit ourselves to use the terms which the China Mail employed towards Governor Robinson. Our contemporary's best and fastest friend denounced him at a public meeting for this matter and the craven heart quailed.

Yet he allowed his columns to be employed in lauding to the skies this very Governor whom he had so rabidly abused, and who had in no way repented of his sins nor changed the errors of his paths. The Ceylon papers make it appear on the authority of the China Mail, that Governor Robinson was the most enlightened and popular Governor conceivable during his stay in Hongkong, and that the community held him in such high respect that they knew not what to leave undone on his departure hence.

It was for this express purpose that our contemporary laid his columns at the feet of Sir Hercules. He desired to do a rising man a service, in the expectation that it would be requited. We suppose Sir Hercules took a hundred copies of the paper containing his praises and deemed the account square. We do not value the good opinion of Sir Hercules much, but we would not for a good deal that even he held us in the contempt he must hold the Editor of the China Mail.

That our contemporary has succeeded to the full in causing us intense annoyance in this matter, we do with sorrow admit. But in the performance of the achievement he has proved himself a charlatan, an abject sycophant, and a contemptible time server. The mantle of the China Mail has indeed fallen on him, and he has shown himself worthy of the repulsive uniform. That such a crawling scribbler should be an exponent of British policy in China, is painful to contemplate.

Regarding this opposition China paper. It is got up by Mr Cecil Smith, the acting Registrar. We shall be happy to reciprocate all those amenities of journalism which are accorded elsewhere. We make no doubt there is room for us both, as all Chinamen can read and there are three hundred millions of them. Mr Smith however errs we think in issuing a paper free of charge, and displays a spirit of opposition which is quite unnecessary. We have a subscription list which he can scarcely touch, and if he continues to assail it by a gratis issue, relying on advertisements, we have simply to reduce the rate of our advertisements and he can hardly make two ends meet.

He should believe us that there is room for both, and that nothing so much conduces to the success of a news paper, as salutary rivalry. A paper with such a field to itself as the Empire of China is like the last rose of summer. An opposition journal will create an echo and elicit attention.

From our Paris Correspondent.

PARIS, March 26th, 1865.

The debates on the address in the Corps Legislatif, but in the Senate they took place with great éclat.

They began by a very original speech by the Marquis de Boissy a second Sithbop who meddles with everything and speaks very ugly truths mixed with many errors. The Marquis began by a profession of faith; he is Imperialist legitimist, that is to say he adores the direct dynasty, and has a great aversion for the younger branch. After this stone thrown in the garden of Prince Napoleon, the senator desirous of showing his affection for the dynasty set about abusing the prefects that he finds detestable, and the police which is bad, he finds the convention of the 15th September absurd, the Mexican expedition disastrous, and finishes by asking for a war with England, this is a chronic malady; with the Marquis, she ravages every single sitting; the 13th which treated of the Encyclical provoked a very interesting debate. Mr. Rouland who is the last of the Gallicans, pronounced a violent speech against Ultramontanism, he denounced them as directing the Catholic movements in the name of the Pope, troubling consciences and braving reason and progress, to satisfy their thirst for domination; and as the Cardinal Senators denied this, the Minister threatened them with bringing to the tribune irrefutable proof of his accusation.

The Cardinal de Bonnetoure denied the existence of Gallicanism, and approved religious congregations, and after having vainly endeavoured to demonstrate that the Encyclical was compatible with progress, he spoke most seriously of the tolerance of the papacy, the Proscrits of the Jews, "And the little Morlaes," exclaimed a Senator; the Cardinal did not reply to this interruption. An imprudent word escaped the prelate. "My Clergy he said, is a regiment. "I recommend, it obeys." This is just what renders the Clergy dangerous, it does not reason, it follows obstinately the orders which came from Rome. Mr. Baujeu had a fine game, he quoted Bulls and pastoral letters, spoke of the middle ages and showed the increasing ambition of the Popo, and concluded by calling the attention of the Senate to the immense riches of the religious communities in France where they are more numerous that they have ever been. Mr. Darboy is at the same time Chamberlain to the Emperor and Archbishop, how conciliate the duties imposed by these double functions, he himself says it is possible; as well as Mr. Rheuilier the government orator, in fact all this fuss about the Encyclical is very absurd, for it only ends in the maintainance pure, and simple of the actual legislation! That is to say of a state of things which is the cause of all the evil!

This result was inevitable, to proclaim the absolute independence of the Church, to abolish the budget of the Clergy, would be to break with the Pope, and it is not the Emperor Napoleon III., who would assume this responsibility. The Emperor will conserve the papacy in the hope that the papacy will assure the future of the Empire.

The Vatican understands that it has nothing to fear from the Tuileries, and it has only to fear its own faults. It is only in appearance that the France-Italian Convention is contrary to the papacy, in reality it protects it, but it is always well to cry sanctus and the Pope does not fail to do so. The other day M. de Bastigny, French Ambassador at Rome notified to Pius IX. that the evacuation was about to commence and as he surrounded his declaration with every diplomatic politeness, the Pope interrupted him saying well! Retire your troops, retire them to-morrow if you like—do what you intend to do immediately (quod facis fac citius) those are precisely the words of Jesus addressed to Judas when the latter betrayed him. His reply was bright! Sheridan had not been sorry to know that Napoleon III cannot break with the papacy and the abuses of it.

Orders have been at Toulon to prepare two transports which in July will await at Civita Vecchia the first regiments by which the evacuation of Rome will commence. The Cavalry horses will be sold; De Merods wished to buy them for the Pontifical Government, but they could not agree as to price. I expect to see Pius IX does not trouble himself at this resolution, he sees all the core the French Government takes to smooth down the bitterness of its execution. The Empress Eugenie who desires to restore the monuments of Jerusalem and particularly the Holy Sepulchre, has just written to all the Christian Sovereigns asking their assistance and their subscription to this work.

The Ultramontanes profit by this situation and push Pius IX on the unfortunate path he entered by the publication of the Encyclical, they desire that the papacy should break a lance with civilization, and probable reason and common sense. The first manifestation of the boldness, was the adoption of the Dogma of the Immaculate Conception. Rome is now about to canonize the Agents of the Duke of Alva, lilled during the frightful struggle between Protestantism and Catholicism, and that 16 days before the St. Bartholomew; another Saint is about to be made, Peter of Arbries, grand Inquisitor of Arragon, who was massacred after having caused thousand of victims to be burnt. Is it odious to stir up these sad remembrances? For what this new outrage on the human conscience? The fact is that Ultramontane Catholicism does not desire anything in common with reason. Miracles arrive at the very moment, when philosophy combats the supernatural. The report is current at Rome that a woman, Sophie Deschall was miraculously cured of an incurable disease, by having demanded the Pope's benediction: this woman did not inhabit Rome; the miracle was operated by Post! we must respect other prodigies: the canonisation of Pius IX is being prepared before hand, they cannot do less for a pontiff who has proclaimed the Immaculate Conception and published the Encyclical.

Napoleon III. then has taken into account the presumable obstinacy of the Papacy and the imprudences of the Ultramontanes, avoid a conflict, turn the effort of Italians from Rome, and direct it against Venice, such appears to be his plan, Venice will then become the ransom of the Papacy. It is for this reason I add some faith to the report of the existence of a secret treaty between Napoleon III and Victor Emanuel, after the convention of the 9th September this has been denied by the Constitutionel, which is no reason we should not believe it on the contrary. If the existence of the treaty is not true, it is very likely, and chimes in with the policy adopted by Napoleon towards the Papacy.

The King of Italy has returned to Florence, the warm reception which greeted him in Lombardy could not overcome his morosences. Since the affair of Turin the King is dull and incurable. At Turin he was at home. The population pardoned many little faults, or laughed at his love affairs. At Florence all his straight laced, and that disposed him. It is said an interview will take place at Lyons on the 15th April, between the Emperor Napoleon and Victor Emmanuel. The King of Italy is resolved on abdicating in favor of Prince Humbert, who attained, his majority on the 14th of March, but before taking a definite determination he wishes to confer with the Emperor, and it is with this intention that an early meeting is decided on.

In the spite of the good example given by Florence, Italy has not completely destroyed the Soulfoli; the parliament has abolished the penalty of death for crimes in the ordinary penal codes, but maintains it in the army, and navy, and in the provinces where Brigandage exists.

This half measure does not content any one, for the same sentiment inspires all malefactors, however we may hope before long to see the promulgation of the dogma of the inviolability of human life, and to Florence will belong the honor of having placed herself at the head of the Crusade.

Nevrnes now appears in his true character, the liberal premises of his programme are totally forgotten. He has now got rid of all external preoccupation; the abandonment of St. Domingo is decided on, the Peruvian question is settled. The government is preparing to pocket the indemnity of 60 millions given them by Peru. The Bills have been accepted at London; order has been given to diminish the effective of the army by 10,000 men, which will effect an economy of 60 million annually. Nevrnes now directs his attention to internal politics.

The commences by arresting the journalists, the Editor of the Dauphinois, Mr. Emilie Custelar having proved that the pretended generosity of the Queen was reduced to a simple benefit for herself, and a direct loss for the Country. Mr. Custelar has been imprisoned, set a liberty on bail and presented as the saviour of his country. Nevrnes has a horror of everything which thinks, writes, and reads, and he has just presented a project of law on the press, of which Nocedal of odious memory might even be jealous. Anyway against the journals has never been carried to such a point of severity as this, and 22 Madrid journals have protested by a courageous address which terminates by these words:

"In consequence, the undersigned, editors of "the political journals of every shade of liberal "politics published in Madrid, without distinction "of parties, being in view, the honour of the "writers and the defence of the rights of the press, "so gravely protest against a project of law which, "in direct opposition with all known doctrines "and public opinion, in contradiction with our "manners, and offering to the press but deceitful "guarantees, pretends not only to punish but to "dishonour the publisher, not only to oppress the "press but to lash it, to kill thought and dishonour it."

Nevrnes no doubt despises the protestation of the press, he believes like Sabronus that it is useless entering into discussion with a man who commands 36 legions, but he must mind what he is about, for it is not the first time the pen has been stronger than the sword. The revolution of 1830 began thus.

Great has been the agitation in the Peninsula and the government seems to take a pleasure in throwing oil on the fire. At Saragossa 80 progressists wished to celebrated an anniversary dear to every democrat. The Ministry caused the theatre to be weighed, and every one having a single ticket was refused admittance. Many of the 15th of March, but before taking a definite looks of progressists to be arrested, which proves that in Spain the progressistes possess a particular physionomy, prosecution has commenced and the congress approves the illegal conduct of the Government.

At Madrid, the Democrats publish a manifest proclaiming confiscated liberty, the representatives of the provincial democracy desire to celebrate by a banquet this demonstration of their party but not a single representative dared to offer his room for the assembly, however the law is there, but there is something above the law, it is the will of Ministers.

There are troubles, fears, and agitations every where. The Carlists are waking up, the starved workmen of Barcelona asked for bread they know however that Narvaez will only reply by cannon balls. These symptoms are serious, and we assist at the prelgues of a revolution in Spain.

The question of the Duchies has not advanced a step, Bavaria wishes to take from the two German powers the right of resolving the question; will Austria take the part of the Diet? or that of Prussia? that depends on the price. Mr. Bismarck will pay. Austria is for sale; this may be seen closely from these interminable discussions, and it is only Prussia who can pay the price she claims, that is the guarantee of her non German possessions. We may say that she will take the part of Prussia.

As to the internal conflict it is managed in the same situation; the commission of the Berlin Parliament has presented its report on the Budget and the Minister of War has again reclaimed of the Chamber the vote of military reform, alleging as a reason that the geographical and political situation of Prussia, square into the two extremes of the military forces which placed between France and Prussia, requires a large army, and that without military reform. Prussia will fall; such is the phantasmagoria that M. de Roon shews to the eyes of the representatives. But the deputies will not fall into the snare, and in spite the Coup d'Etat threatened by M. de Roon, they will make a firm stand in favor of the liberties they have so courageously defended up to this time against the encroachments of power.

On entering the second presidency on the 4th March 1865 M. Lincoln sent a message to Congress, in which, he declared that peace was only possible by the reconsolidation of the Union, and the abolition of Slavery.

The news from the seat of war is still favorable to the Union. After Charleston, and Wilmington fell without a struggle the Confederates have lost their last, resources, they will be no more contraband, no more money. Sherman continues his victorious march. He was last at Fayetville in the heart of Carolina, and advancing by forced marches on Richmond to give Grant the powerful support he needs. Sheridan had joined him early at Pichorville near Spoesburg, Early's staff were taken prisoners, Early himself escaped in the direction of Charlottesville, the probable result of this success will be a new attempt against Lynchburg by Sheridan, supported by forces detached from Grant's army. Lincburg is the only retreat open to Lee if he abandons Richmond. A naval expedition left New Orleans for Mobile on the 1st of March.

The premium on gold has descended to 187. The Booty gained in this victories is coming to hand. 200,000 lbs of Tobacco were captured at Fredericksburg, and the Cotton is arriving from Savannah.

An incident which might have had serious consequences recently took place at Matamoras which is situated on the otherside of the river, and belongs to the Confederates. The Mexican general Megia with all his staff in full uniform repaired to Matamoras where the Confederate general Slaughter waited for him with the troops under arms and received them with a salute of 21 cannon.

After the dinner and the usual exchange of civilities the Mexican flag was hoisted, and saluted by the Mexican general Megia who declared in a speech that the "Confederation" would soon be recognised, and he finished by inviting the Confederates to a banquet at Matamoras and finished by promising to salute the Confederate flag with 21 cannons.

What adds importance to this act and these words, is that general Megia had just been named Commander in Chief of the army in Mexico, and is after the Emperor the 1st personage in the Empire. It must be approved by the Emperor, to take such responsibility in public.

Statement of the facts regarding the seizure of the British steamer "Mercury," John C. Baynton, commander.

On Friday the 10th April 1865 the "Mercury" under my command was offered a charter by certain Chinese at Ningpo. The duties required by the charter party were, that the vessel was to proceed out to the Chusan group and there protect certain fisheries.

The protection of these fisheries is the duty of the Tutai of the province, and certain dues are paid by the fishmen to him for the protection so afforded. For a number of years however the right of protection, and the receipt of the fees, has been farmed out by the Tutai, to the highest bidder, and on this occasion the Hong which chartered me where the farmers for the year.

Not feeling quite certain of the legality of the proceeding I called on Mr. Brown the Acting Commissioner of Customs, and mentioned to him that I had been offered this charter. He informed me that there would be no objection to my accepting if the Tutai gave his sanction, and he wrote a letter to Mr. Holt the British Consul to that effect.

This letter I took to the Consul, and he told me there was no objection to my accepting the charter, but that as I was to fly a Chinese flag he should detain my papers in the Consulate until my charter expired. He however gave me a receipt for them bearing the Consular stamp, and with this I returned and again saw Mr. Brown. That functionary stated that he thought the papers should have been lodged with him instead of at the Consulate, and wrote to Mr. Holt on the subject, but Mr. Holt stated that he was the proper person to take charge of British ship papers. I however lodged with Mr. Brown at his request the receipt I had obtained from the Consul. I told Mr. Brown I had got the Tutai chop and that I should not maintain it in the army, and navy, and in the provinces where Brigandage exists.

This half measure does not content any one, for the same sentiment inspires all malefactors, however we may hope before long to see the promulgation of the dogma of the inviolability of human life, and to Florence will belong the honor of having placed herself at the head of the Crusade.

Nevrnes now appears in his true character, the liberal premises of his programme are totally forgotten. He has now got rid of all external preoccupation; the abandonment of St. Domingo is decided on, the Peruvian question is settled. The government is preparing to pocket the indemnity of 60 millions given them by Peru. The Bills have been accepted at London; order has been given to diminish the effective of the army by 10,000 men, which will effect an economy of 60 million annually. Nevrnes now directs his attention to internal politics.

The commences by arresting the journalists, the Editor of the Dauphinois, Mr. Emilie Custelar having proved that the pretended generosity of the Queen was reduced to a simple benefit for herself, and a direct loss for the Country. Mr. Custelar has been imprisoned, set a liberty on bail and presented as the saviour of his country. Nevrnes has a horror of everything which thinks, writes, and reads, and he has just presented a project of law on the press, of which Nocedal of odious memory might even be jealous. Anyway against the journals has never been carried to such a point of severity as this, and 22 Madrid journals have protested by a courageous address which terminates by these words:

"In consequence, the undersigned, editors of "the political journals of every shade of liberal "politics published in Madrid, without distinction "of parties, being in view, the honour of the "writers and the defence of the rights of the press, "so gravely protest against a project of law which, "in direct opposition with all known doctrines "and public opinion, in contradiction with our "manners, and offering to the press but deceitful "guarantees, pretends not only to punish but to "dishonour the publisher, not only to oppress the "press but to lash it, to kill thought and dishonour it."

Nevrnes no doubt despises the protestation of the press, he believes like Sabronus that it is useless entering into discussion with a man who commands 36 legions, but he must mind what he is about, for it is not the first time the pen has been stronger than the sword. The revolution of 1830 began thus.

Great has been the agitation in the Peninsula and the government seems to take a pleasure in throwing oil on the fire. At Saragossa 80 progressists wished to celebrated an anniversary dear to every democrat. The Ministry caused the theatre to be weighed, and every one having a

The next morning we steamed into Chinkamun the head quarters of the Fisheries and anchored there, the charterers stating they wished to remain for about twenty four hours to open their office, and to transact other business. Mr. Brown during the day suddenly remembered it would be necessary to return to Ningpo immediately, though I had previously understood that he wished to remain out for a few days. I spoke to the charterers about it, and they said I had better take him back, therefore at about the middle of the afternoon we started again for Ningpo, leaving the armed lorcha and the greater part of the party behind us at Chinkamun. We arrived at Ningpo again at about 11 P.M. and Mr. Brown went on shore. I have most distinctly to state that during the time Mr. Brown was on board he never in any way even hinted that anything I was doing was illegal, but on the contrary appeared to support me in the whole of the proceedings.

On the following day I got the ship filled up with coals, provisions, and water, and made arrangements with parties in Ningpo to send me out supplies, as the Head Charteror (who had come in with me) told me we should probably be absent for at least a month. We dropped down to Chinhae that night, and the next morning proceeded to Chinkamun.

I must now enter into a subject which I must own I do with great reluctance, as it is nothing less than an accusation against an official of a very serious nature.

After my arrival at Chinkamun I was informed by my charterers, my pilot, my interpreter, and more than all by my crew, that during the time Mr. Brown was on board, he had informed my charterers that unless he got some cumshaw from them, he would prevent them keeping the steamer. I at the time thought this utterly impossible, and treated it with contempt, but I cannot deny that I have since had reason to alter my opinion. The Chinese even went so far as to ask me what I thought ought to be paid to Mr. Brown, and I of course I told them nothing. Never having in the course of my life had either given or taken a bribe, I only judged that the Chinese must have made a mistake and misunderstood Mr. Brown's meaning.

We remained at Chinkamun until about the 20th April only sending our boats out with the fishing fleet to see them clear of the harbour, as several Paliposes were always cruising outside, to squeeze them, we had a look out place on the hill over the town and the charterers arranged a signal for me to get up steam and go out if necessary, this was only done on the morning of 20th, and as soon as we got clear of the harbour sight or nine boats that were blockading, made sail and stood away after us, leaving the fishing boats to proceed to the fishing grounds unmolested.

The fleet of boats under my protection amounted to about two thousand, eight hundred of which had their head quarters at Chinkamun, the remainder being at Gander Loeum and Chimsan. Each boat carryingon an average about six men so that three boats the whole of them were entirely unarmed, and their crews were without any exception the most cowardly innocent people I have ever seen in China.

When the Louis came in, there was always quite a rush to get near the ship, as I suppose they thought they were safer the nearer they could get.

From all I could gather it appeared to me, that these poor people were awfully victimized and that though nominally protected they still had to pay a species of black mail to about half a dozen self constituted Mandarins on the different islands in the group, and to one in particular on the island Taeshan named Eu-sing-goo of whom they never spoke without terror.

Whether my charterers performed their part of their duty towards those fishermen I cannot say, but both myself, officers and crew were at work day and night, and and I can certainly state that during a long experience at sea, I never worked so hard.

I did not at all like the service and informed my charterers that I should give up the charter at the end of the month, as the charterer party required fourteen days notice on either side.

I requested them to pay me certain moneys which were mentioned in the agreement and they promised to do so in a few days.

They told me that their other boats were collecting money at the different fishing stations, and that they were going on a cruise all round in a few days, and that they would have to go to Shanghai, and engage another steamer to take my place.

During the time I remained in Chinkamun I was several times visited by the Mandarins in charge at that place, and on several occasions called on him on shore. He always treated me with marked respect and got up sing songs &c. for my amusement; the whole of the people on shore always treated me in the same manner, and I was asked into houses, shown everything worth seeing, and was in fact on the best terms with every one in the place.

On returning from the cruise before mentioned to my charterers the importance to get fout of a large fishing stake which jammed the screw and quite disabled our engine, at the time I thought we had struck a rock, but the wind being fair we sailed back to Chinkamun and their discovered that the injury was only slight.

About this time I got a private letter from Mr. Brown stating that he wished to see me. As it was not having breakfast with me he left for Ningpo again. No thrust of any sort or kind was used by me; indeed in the Captain's own account he stated he was treated with every civility.

On the 24th. We were busily engaged repairing our fend pipe which was out of order, and I paid off my Chinese pilot, and he and the charterer left the ship, as I had made up my mind to leave for Foochow, as soon as ever my coal came out. I was still far from well, the loss of the money so hardly earned preyed a good deal on my mind. Next day about 2 P.M. we saw our coal boat coming out, and shortly after wards the Osborn's cruiser; the latter had been sent for on account of the stores being embezzled by a number of Europeans who told me they were going to take the vessel into Ningpo; as I had not the slightest intention of going to Ningpo, I did not attempt any resistance, but allowed them to do as they pleased. They said they did not wish to start until the next day, and were particularly anxious to get hold of my charteror who I told them was on shore. A portion of the party went on shore to look for him, and were told he was on board a lorcha some distance off outside. They asked me to go out in the steamer and catch him. This of course was just what I wanted, and I agreed to do so.

My coal boat had arrived by this time, and anchored a short distance off. After steaming out a short distance, we came up with the lorcha, and some of the party went in their boat to search her. As soonas they were well clear of the steamer I turned round and went away full speed, the party on board asked me were I was going and Ir told them Foochow; they asked what for going to do with them I told them any thing we likede I would land them or put them into thothey fishing boat I met; they requested me to put them on board the Custom's cruiser and to this I agreed. I accordingly steamed back, called a sampan alongside into which they went. Not violence, threats or any ill language passed; there was no occasion for either, and before leaving, the whole party went with me into the cabin, and took a parting glass.

After the party had left, we picked up our coal boat, steamed out about two miles and took the coal on board, this we finished about 10 P.M. next day, when we started for Foochow but did not arrive there until the 16th, owing to a succession of contrlerly winds.

I had expected to get a charter from the Chinese authorities in consequence of the rebels entering the province, but after waiting some days I found there was no chance. We left Foochow again on the 22nd, Amoy and arrived at Shanghai on the 27th, entered at the Consulate and Customs on the 28th.

On the 29th. I had the offer of a charter from Messrs. Reid & Co. and sent to the Customs for my clearance which was however refused; on the 5th. calmly and furnished with everything which could shew them to make the publication of a newspaper a work of no care or anxiety, for if it fails, they fall back upon the allowances of their respective societies.

The Canton paper contains, besides a few indifferent notices and gleanings from existing organs, reprints from the "Chinese Serial;" that is, the Reverend Editors issue their paper in strict accordance with their master's injunctions, and as good householders, bring forth out of their treasury "things new or old."

As to the notices regarding the position of the characters for God and the Emperor, only narrow mindedness can dictate such nonsense; only a few pedantic missionaries have left a blank before the name of God, or placed the character higher than others. Such a rule is, however, not even adopted by the writer himself and has never been followed in your Chinese issue. If, however there are reprints from the "Peking Gazette," the original form is preserved in deference to the native authorities. If the writer of those lines, however, thinks the progress of Christianity is to depend on the magnitude of Chinese Character representing the name for the Deity, or in displacing of them at the top or bottom, he is ar-

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

To the Editor of the "Daily Press".

SIR,—The Evening Mail of May 8th, in noticing the appearance of a new Chinese Newspaper by Messrs. Noronha and Sons, has taken occasion to sound the depth of your know lamly mistaken, and will be more usefully employed at home in preaching to his countrymen.

If there is anything like knowledge of the Chinese language in the office of the "Evening Mail" why is not the article on the "Striking of the White Dove" contained in the same number, translated for the information of the local authorities?

This article was written in 1859 by the son of a Mandarin who saw this vice prevalent in this Colony to an alarming extent, and instill unchecked. If the writer of those notes thinks England and America free from the belief in the transformation of men &c. then let him read "Dicks works," or the "Mystical Phenomena of Human Nature" and he will soon be disabused.

NOTICE OF REDUCTION OF PASSAGE MONEY.

IN the year 1857 the Directors made a considerable reduction in the Company's rates of Passage Money, which continued in force till 1861.

In that year, owing to the extraordinary rise in the Cost and Freight of Coals, and the enhanced price of all descriptions of Naval Stores, the Directors were reluctantly compelled to return to the rates of Passage Money previously in force. They are now happy to state that a decrease in the price of Coal and other expenses of Steam Navigation enables them to reduce the Company's Passage rates to the underrated scale, which will take effect from and after the 1st June next, viz.:—

From Hongkong to—

Suez,	$460
Malta,	510
Marseilles,	530
Gibraltar,	530
Southampton,	550
Reserved Rates for Single Persons.
Suez,	$620
Malta,	1,020
Marseilles,	1,060
Gibraltar,	1,060
Southampton,	1,100
Reserved Rates for Married Couples.
Suez,	$1,160
Malta,	1,200
Gibraltar,	1,240
Marseilles,	1,340
Southampton,	1,388

The Charges for Children are in proportion to the above.

The above rates are exclusive of the amount payable to the Egyptian Transit Administration for conveyance of Passengers through Egypt, viz:—

For First-class Passengers, $32
Children above three and under ten years, half-fare.
